Forecast For Northwest England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 08 Sep 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Very warm and sunny today. Thundery showers tomorrow.

Today:
A very warm or hot day with plenty of sunshine, though some cloud may move in from the south late in the day. Light winds. Maximum temperature 29 deg C (84 deg F).

Tonight:
Mostly dry with clear spells through the evening and overnight, although turning cloudier in the south with the chance for a few showers during the early morning. Remaining mild. Minimum temperature 14 deg C (57 deg F).

Thursday:
A cloudy start to the day with a few showers and some bright or sunny spells. Heavy, possibly thundery showers developing for the afternoon. Warm, though cooler than of late. Maximum temperature 25 deg C (77 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
Friday unsettled with outbreaks of rain or showers, locally heavy and perhaps thundery. Saturday remaining cloudy but mostly dry. Sunday becoming dry with plenty of sunny spells.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.